Looking after this place together

On 26 October 1985, title deeds to Uluru and Kata Tjuta were handed back to Anangu traditional owners who then leased the land to the federal government for 99 years.

Since then, Anangu have been working together with the Director of National Parks to jointly manage this place. During this time, the park has been recognised as a World Heritage Area for both its natural and cultural values.

Under the Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation (EPBC) Act on-the-spot fines can apply

PLEASE DON’T CLIMB ULURU

“That’s a really important thing you are climbing. You shouldn’t climb. It’s not the real thing about this place. The real thing is listening to everything. We are obliged by Tjukurpa (traditional law) to teach people what behaviour is appropriate.”

WARNING
IF YOU CHOOSE TO CLIMB
Consider your health and fitness.

The climb is physically demanding.
Over 35 people have died attempting it.

Don’t risk your life!
Do not climb if you have high or low blood pressure, heart or breathing problems, a fear of heights or if you are not fit.

The climb is closed during adverse weather conditions and rescue operations. It may also be closed for important cultural reasons.
